

Medical information on accompanying adults

May 2000

Issue

A medical emergency or complication to a teacher or other accompanying adult can be as big a problem as it happening to a young person. However, many providers only get medical information forms off the young people.

Outcome

Providers should consider getting the same information from all participants.